THE LAST CHANCE!

A Thrilling Era—The Duty of the Hour—A Splendid Opportunity and a Glittering Prize.

The most exciting and momentous epoch of American history is upon us. A presidential campaign is opening, which will decide for democracy and liberty, or radicalism and the downfall of republican government. The recent democratic victories inspire the hopes of freemen. Business is reviving, and the people seek eagerly for political and general information. Consequently, newspapers are more eagerly sought and are being taken to every intelligent household, as the greatest source of home education and amusement.

In addition to his county journal, every person should take one great City paper, which furnishes the latest Telegraphic, Commercial, Agricultural, General Intelligence and current news of the day. An opportunity is now presented to subscribe for such a journal, and at the same time without extra charge secure the chance of getting one thousand dollars in gold, or other magnificent present, as set forth below.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION,

published at the State Capital, the Gate City of the South, ranks among the foremost journals of the United States, and the MAMMOTH EIGHT-PAGED WEEKLY of 48 columns, is the great Family Journal of the South. Its unswerving Democratic career, and its successful struggle with Bullock and Georgia Radicalism, are well known. Every subscriber to it enjoys a privilege unprecedented in the South, namely: A chance to receive one of the following presents, amounting in value to over $5,000 00.

One cash gift, in gold	$1,000
One cash gift, in greenbacks	500
Five cash gifts, in greenbacks	500
One magnificent piano	1,000
One beautiful piano	600

Also, gold and silver watches, seven sewing machines, a $100 oil painting richly framed, complete sets of the best authors prose and poet, and numerous other valuable gifts, presenting by far the most remarkable gift distribution to newspaper subscribers ever known. On application to the undersigned specimen copies of THE CONSTITUTION, will be sent free to any address, with full list of presents and a description of the pianos, one of which is the world-renowned CHICKERING SQUARE GRAND, our piano being the identical one which has taken four or five State Fair premiums.

THE PLAN

is simple. Every subscriber paying ten dollars for the Daily one year, receives a registered card—a club of Weeklies paying ten dollars for five copies one year also receives a registered card. A Weekly subscriber paying ten dollars for 5 years' subscription gets a card. A Daily subscriber paying five dollars for 6 months, or Weekly subscriber paying five dollars for two and a half years, gets a half card.

The presents will be drawn to these cards, by lot, in public, under the management of subscribers, the proprietors having nothing to do with it. Issue of cards limited to 4,000—less than last year.

All the gifts are now in our possession and will be positively awarded without scaling or change in any respect. This is our last distribution and takes place

December 31st, 1874.

This, therefore, is the last chance. At our first distribution, Mr. George Eberhart received $1,250 in gold for a Madison county club of weeklies.

THE CONSTITUTION contains stories, poetry, miscellaneous and humorous reading. A thrilling new story, "The Maniac Lover," begins in January.

Agents wanted—unparalleled inducements offered.

Those not knowing us we refer to Mayor Spencer and ex-Mayor Hammock, of Atlanta.

Send money by registered letter, post office order or express. Address

TO THE CUCKOO.

O blithe new comer! I have heard,
I hear thee and rejoice;
O cuckoo, shall I call thee bird,
Or but a wandering voice?

While I am lying on the grass
Thy twofold shout I hear,
From hill to hill it seems to pass,
At once far off, and near.

Though babbling only to the vale,
Of sunshine and of flowers,
Thou bringest unto me a tale
Of visionary hours.

Welcome, darling of the spring!
Even yet thou art to me
No bird, but an invisible thing,
A voice, a mystery.

The same whom in my school-boy days
I listened to; that cry
Which made me look a thousand ways
In bush, in tree, and sky.

To seek thee, did I often rove
Through woods and on the green;
And thou wert still a hope, a love,
Still longed for, never seen.

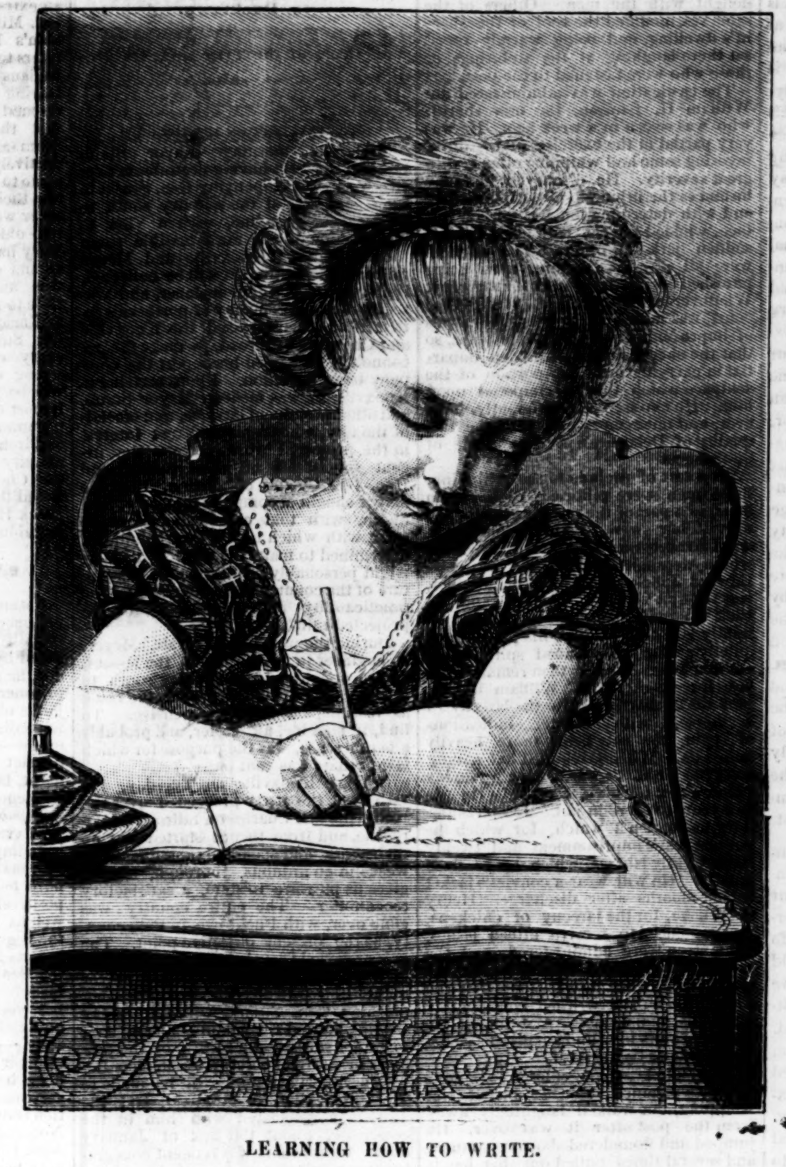
And I can listen to thee yet;
Can lie upon the plain
And listen till I do beget
That golden time again.

O blessed bird! the earth we pace
Again appears to be
An unsubstantial, fairy place:
That is fit home for thee.

—:o:—

HER REST IS SWEET.

Under the skies of May,
Out of the smiling day,
Into the shadows gray,
Must she be torne away!
Will it not grieve her?
Death's wondrous winding-sheet,
Peace, in calm complete,
Shrouds her from brow to feet;
Earth will receive her,
E'en as a mother's breast
Shelters her babe to rest;
Nor will death's lovely guest,
Passed beyond human quest,
Know that we leave her.



LEARNING HOW TO WRITE.

THE CHOICE.

Swift through the darkness
The little boat goes;
What is before us,
Who cares, and who knows?
Low hang the branches
That border the stream;
Afloat in their shade,
Do we wake, do we dream?

Could our flight thro' the twilight
Continue for aye,
Should we care for the sunlight,
Or pine for the day?
Should I tire of the language
Of beautiful eyes,
And weary of melody
Written in sighs?

If life were but floating
By a sweet woman's side,
Should we long for the haven,
Or turn of the tide?
Still through the shadows
We grope to the sea;
The world is before us,
And I, love, choose thee!

—:o:—

THANKSGIVING.

Father, I thank Thee!
Once again I feel
The loving arm of thy protecting care,
Outstretched to save me in the dreary night
Of sorrow and despair.

Earth-trials thickened!
And the hour grew dark,
My step was faltering and my faith was weak.
In bitterness I prayed that death might come.
And then I heard Thee speak.

Only a whisper!
By the ocean borne.
Bringing sweet comfort from the heavenly shore,
"Be still and know that I am God,"
Nor fret thy spirit more.

Only a lamb that strayed!
From out the fold.
Yet the good shepherd sought, with anxious pain,
To find the wanderer, and with loving care,
To bring it back again.

For this, I thank Thee!
And tho' still the test
Of earth's hard conflict I may have to bear,
I'll lean upon a Saviour's loving arm,
And I will conquer by the power of prayer.

KITTY FOOTE'S DEATH.

Good Advice to the Colored Race.

A few day's ago there died at Vicksburg, Miss., an old negro lady named Kitty Foote, who had at one time been a slave, and owned by ex-Governor Foote. By a consistent and honorable life she had endeared herself so to the citizens of Vicksburg that her death was mourned as a public calamity, and her funeral was attended by all the leading and prominent citizens. Dr. Marshall, of that city, in speaking of her life and lessons, called the attention of the colored persons present to the large number of white families in attendance, and said: What a token of good will and kindness. Once the kindest feelings existed between you. You knew and loved each other. There was concord and kindness, and the same good feeling, attachment, and mutual esteem ought now to exist. Your condition has been greatly changed. You are no longer slaves, but as long as the sun shines and the river runs into the sea, you and your posterity will remain free. And all the white people want this to be so. Not one of them wants you to be slaves again; and when anybody tells you so, he does so not because he believes it, but to impose on you and alarm you. He is your worst enemy who talks such nonsense to you, and you will by and by, in time, find it out.

What next? Now you are all free, and can never be slaves again. What next? The next thing is the improvement of your race, the education of your children, the uplifting of your families. To do this most successful you need, like your departed and sainted friend, to cultivate the kind regards of the best classes of the white people. If you ever find any better friends than they are and have been, then go after them. But long weary years will go over your heads, and you that are young shall grow gray and infirm with numerous years before you will ever find any better friends than you have all around you, however much you may forget and neglect them.

The responsibility and obligations of the young women of your race are very great. You must live virtuous, truthful, honest, diligent, God-fearing prayerful and good, The young men before me desire to be useful; desire to be respected and well thought of by all good men. If so set a high standard of manly life; be sober, frugal, industrious, peaceable. Be polite and respectful, cleanly and moral, and you will win hosts of friends for yourselves, and your wives, and your children; and dying, will leave behind you a name that will blossom in the dust.

You see to-day what one plain, humble woman of your race has done. How quietly and by unwavering stages of progress she rose to so great a position in society as to make her death felt as a public calamity. And there are hundreds before me now who if they would accept her example of purity, industry, gentleness, piety, and usefulness may pass their lives in great comfort, enjoy the friendship of the best white and colored people, and come to their graves loved and revered by all.

How Oysters are Born.

Our bivalve, however, does not spawn after the manner of mollusks generally. It is, in its own way, viviparous. It does not emit eggs, but, at the proper time, sends forth its young alive. The eggs are dislodged from the ovaries and committed to the nursing care of the gill and mantel. At first each egg seems to be inclosed in a capsule. It is of a yellowish color, but as incubation or development progresses, the color changes, first to a gray, then to a brown, afterward to a violet, This is a sign that the time of eviction is at hand, for nature now issues her writ to that effect. And wonderful little beings they are when the writ arrives to vacate the homestead; for whole troops of them can go gracefully and without jostling through the maziest evolutions in that tiniest sphere—a drop of water. As cited by F. W. Fellowes, in the American Naturalist, says M. Davaine: "Nothing is more curious than to see, under the microscope, these little mollusks travel in a drop of water, in vast numbers, mutually avoiding one another, crossing each other's track in every direction with wonderful rapidity, never touching and never meeting." The parent oyster has, indeed, a prodigious family to turn out upon the world. But when this time does come, though winter be near, her actions are summary, and the wee bairns are every one ordered from home. They are spit forth, or ejected from the shell. Filled with water, the valves are suddenly snapped together. Every snap emits a small whitish cloud. Though a little of the milky fluid be in it, this whitish cloud is composed chiefly of the tiny fry; for, individually, they are almost invisible. Indeed, who shall count the oyster's offsprings? Science, by her own methods, has made the computation, and so she gives us the astounding assurance that a single oyster, during one spawning season, emits two million embryos.

A Sick Ambassador.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

WASHINGTON, November 28.—Hon. Milton Turner, U. S. minister to Liberia, arrived in this city yesterday morning, leave of absence having been granted him for the purpose of recuperating his health, upon which the severity of the climate of Africa has made sad havoc.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL.

A Presidential Allocution Against the Measure.

[Washington special to the Chicago Times.]

The views which the president will probably submit to congress on the civil rights bill are foreshadowed by the opinions which he has expressed within a day or two, in conversation, to some of his friends. He says that he has always looked upon some of the measures advocated in that direction as exceeding unwise. He does not think that legislation designed to regulate the social relations of any class of people is judicious, as it generally gives rise to a state of feeling calculated to do more mischief than good. There were some things which had better be left to find their own level, rather than to undertake to force results out of the natural course. Every citizen, he believes, is entitled to certain rights, and, be he white or black, rich or poor, those rights should be enjoyed in freedom. So far, he has favored civil rights, but when it has been brought up as a social question, in which congressional interference can effect no beneficial results, and only annoy a very large, influential and intelligent class, he has opposed any further steps. Had the bill before congress last session been presented for his signature, it is already known he would have vetoed it; and he will veto any other bill with similar provisions on social questions. In the matter of mixed schools, the president thinks that to enforce such a measure would be of no service to the colored people, and would destroy the common school system of the United States, and deprive the poor of all classes of an education. What change there might be in public sentiment on the subject in the future it was quite evident to him that mixed schools would drive away the children of a large class who need education, and for whom free schools were first established. He only alluded in this matter to the position of the national government. As far as the states were concerned, that was a question entirely local and for them to decide. If public sentiment favored mixed schools, they could have them, but it was not the part of congress to force such a measure, whether or not, upon communities of antagonistic views. The president thinks that there should be appropriate provisions everywhere for the education of the colored race, and experience has already demonstrated that, where the numbers are great they should have their own schools; and where the rumbers are small, they have almost universally been admitted to the public schools of the whites.

Anarchy in the Cherokee Nation.

[By Telegraph to the Constitution.]

NEW YORK, November 28.—A telegram from the Cherokee Nation, dated the 28th, says that the official investigation by Maj. Ingalls of the fight here on the 24th inst., shows a lamentable condition of affairs. Over one hundred shots were fired. Joseph Murphy, while quietly at work on a building, was shot in the breast, and died soon after. Thos. Hanchett and Thos. Dilk, who were wounded by pistol shots, will probably recover. They are members of the national council. The sheriff and his deputy have resigned. The functions of the guard have been suspended, as the murderers were both members of the guard. The sheriff from the Illinois district and a posse of mounted men are patrolling the place. Over one hundred warriors have come in, and others are on the way. The excitement is intense, and more trouble is anticipated.

An Interview with Thiers.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

PARIS, November 28.—Thiers yesterday in an interview accorded to the representative of the La France newspaper said that Italian unity was irrevocably accomplished, and if France wishes to preserve friendship with Italy she must recognize this fact and not adopt the clerical policy towards that country. In relation to France Thiers said the country was neither Bonapartist nor monarchial, but republican, and this must be recogned by Marshal McMahon.

JEFFERSON'S SISTER.

She Was Not the Wife of a Kentucky Murderer.

The following paragraph printed a short time since in the Paducah Kentuckian, elicited a letter of explanation from one of Jefferson's sister's descendants, a copy of which is also appended:

"It is not generally known that a sister of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, is buried at Rocky Hill, two miles back of Birdsville, on the Ohio river, in Livingston county, Kentucky. She was the wife of Dr. Charles Lewis, who had the reputation of being a cruel and bad man, and who was killed on the Illinois shore by a mob, after being arrested on a charge of murder."

"NEAR LEWISBURG, GREENBRIAR CO., }
West Virginia, Nov. 20, 1874. }

Editor Kentuckian: I was shocked to find some weeks ago the inclosed publication in the Christian Observer, published in Louisville, Ky. The 'sister of Thomas Jefferson' referred to was Lucy Jefferson, and was married to Col. Chas. Lilburn Lewis, an officer in the revolutionary war, and lived and died respected by all who knew him.

"In about 1816, he and his two married sons sold a large landed estate in Albermarle county, Va., and emigrated to Livingston county, Ky., with their families, with the exception of two daughters, one of whom (my mother) then married to Craven Peyton, and the other to Thomas Jefferson, Jr., son of Randolph Jefferson, only brother of President Jefferson, who is still living in the county of Fluvanna, Va., at the advanced age of ninety-two.

"Some years after the death of Mrs. Lewis (my grandmother) his son-in-law, Thomas Jefferson, Jr., went to Livingston county, Kentucky, and bought his father-in-law, Col. Charles Lilburn Lewis, back to Albermarle county, Virginia, and he died at my father's, in Albermarle, in 1828, in the eighty-fourth year of his age an honored member of a christian church.

"As a grandsen who knew and revered his grandfather, I give you the above unvarnished facts; how far they correspond with your statement, I leave you to judge.

"CHARLES L. PEYTON."

Grant's Dry Nurse.

[Washington Cor. of the Hartford Times.]

General Babcock, who is here styled the dry nurse, is a man of force and character, but he has renounced all individuality, in order to keep near his master. It is a small business for a United States officer to be steward of the White House. Gen. Babcock sits in a room adjoining the president's cabinet. He receives cards, and decides who shall be admitted and who refused audience. While thus engaged a messenger will come from the private apartments of Mrs. Grant with a message. The madame wants him to see about hanging a picture, or more tin pans are needed for the kitchen, or the harnesses are out of order, or there is some domestic affair that he must attend to. He also has to keep a close watch upon his liege lord; for that great man is sometimes unfit to be seen, and Gen. Babcock must cover up and conceal the matter. He must also be ready at a moment's notice to accompany the president upon his travels. Now, Babcock has a wife and children. But he forsakes them all to do his master's bidding. He grows fat and rich in the double capacity of president's secretary and steward. Speaking of Gen. B., quite an amusing thing happened last winter in social life. General Babcock's rank in the army is that of major. A distinguished officer, who is on frontier duty, and who ranks Major Babcock, was visiting this city; and Mrs. Babcock called upon the officer's wife, who was staying at the Arlington hotel. She wrote on her card:

"GENERAL AND MRS. BABCOCK, for Colonel and Mrs. ——."

When the call was returned, the lady wrote on her card:

"GENERAL AND MRS. ——,
for Major and Mrs. Babcock."

The Cyclone at Montevallo.

[From the Selma Times.

Our special telegram from Montevallo, concerning the cyclone that visited that place on Monday morning, gave no exaggerated picture of the terrible effects of the monster; in fact it was not by any means as vivid as the reality justified. The main facts are corroborated by Messrs. H. C. Reynolds and R. E. O'Brien, two very intelligent gentleman from Montevallo, with whom we had an interview last night.

They inform us that fifteen minutes before the cyclone burst upon the ill-fated town, it was a bright, beautiful moonlight night, with not the least indication of the approaching horror that overwhelmed the poor people and marked its visit with death and desolation. The approach of the tornado gave out a sound like that of an immense train of cars running at lightning speed. Pitchy darkness supervened upon bright moonlight in less time than it takes to write it, and the work of destruction was rapid and almost instantaneous. Those who were not injured were stupefied by the awfulness of the scene, and no pen can portray the horrors of the night.

The cyclone did its work in the twinkling of an eye, and the crash of falling buildings, trees, fences and all movable objects, with the howling, shrieking monster, created a pandemonium that was appalling. Finishing its terrible work the cyclone went howling to the northeast, leaving devastation and destruction in its pathway.

In the midst of the destruction by the cyclone, the grand cloud burst, and a perfect deluge rained upon the town for twenty minutes. No other term than cloud-burst can fitly describe the rain. It came down in torrents and sluices, and its like had never been seen. Ditches and gutters overflowed and the streets were flooded. The creek that separates the town from the railroad depot, on Sunday night before the storm came was so low that one could easily step across the stream, and in a half hour from the commencement of the rain, it was swimming for fully seventy-five yards.

Many people have been left homeless and entirely destitute, having houses, furniture, provisions clothing—in fact. everything swept away, and they appeal to the citizens of Selma for help.

About thirty houses were destroyed, and the damage is not less than $40,000.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Tribune writes: "I had a most gratifying conversation with General John B. Gordon, Senator from Georgia, and one of the ablest men in the south. He said: 'We all begin to fell as if we were in the union again. I never saw anything like the change that has been wrought in our people by this evidence that we are no longer to be suspected and proscribed by the people of the north. Why, even the ladies take part in the general rejoicing, and berin to talk about the union as though they had a personal interest in it, and you know many of them have boasted all along that they were 'not reconstructed, and expected never to be.' At a mass-meeting the other night at which there was great enthusiasm, nothing said by me was so much applauded as the words in which I pledged the people of Georgia to stand by the constitution, the union, and the enforcement of the laws; my denunciation of the radicals and radicalism did not call forth half so much enthusiasm as my expression of union sentiments and good will to the people of the whole country." General Gordon thought the policy of the democrats in congress would not be reactionary as to any of the ideas embodied in the constitutional amendment adopted since the war and laws enacted thereunder; policy, no less than common honesty, dictates the strict enforcement of all laws by which the rights of the freedmen have been enlarged, and demands that the white people, as a class, shall show themselves true friends of the colored race. Between the two races in Georgia the feeling is one of friendship, and their relations are improving; the carpet-baggers are graduall leaving for more congenial fields of labor. Left to themselves, the southern whites and the southern blacks may live in peace and prosperity."

NOVEMBER.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, FOR THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION, COUGHS AND COLDS. The great virtue of this medicine is that it ripens the matter and throws it out of the system, purifies the blood and thus effects a cure.

SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC, FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, &C. The Tonic produces a healthy action of the stomach, creating an appetite, forming chyle, and during the most obstinate cases indigestion.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, &C.—These Pills are alterative, and produce a healthy action of the liver, without the least danger, as they are free from calomel, and yet more efficacious in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption, as the Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create a healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic gives tone and strength to the stomach, makes a good digestion, and enables the organs to form good blood, and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if taken in time, and the use of the medicines persevered in.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters, for advice must be addressed.

BREVITIES.

—Tom Hood, editor of the London Fun, just dead, was the son of Tom, the great humorist and poet.

—Grant says it was the fault of congress, and congress says it was Grant. Come, toss up.—Boston Post.

—It is now thought Smith, of Arkansas, had an attack of the delirium tremens when he undertook his revolution.

—They say his name is Gus Marvin, and he does the fun for the Brooklyn Argus—to the great disgust of various small wits.

—Admiral Porter contradicts the story that his daughter is to marry James Gordon Bennett. Pretty good authority; but what does the lady say?

—It is stated on good authority that the Pope is more partial to the American minister at Rome than to the representative of any other country.

—It was not Wash McLean, the prominent Ohio politician and editor, who died last Friday of heart disease, but his brother, S. B. Wiley McLean.

—A Dubuque wife cooked the family cat for her husband's supper, and that unfortunate man has since been unable to resist a desire to sit on the fence all night and yowl.

—"Short and pudgy women ought not to wear belts."—[Fashion Notes. This is good advice thrown away. There is not a woman in the world who believes it applies to her. "Short and pudgy!" Not for Josephine.

—And now the head of the family, returning from his "club" through the sharp midnight air, gently rolls his sleeping spouse over to the cold side of the bed, and slips softly into the vacated spot with a sigh of thankfulness.

—Montgomery, the late colored independent republican candidate for congress in the sixth district of Maryland, has been arrested at Cumberland and held to answer the charge of keeping his barber shop open after midnight on Saturday.

—The doctors are doing a brisk business vaccinating the people of Mobile. It is estimated that 2,000 were vaccinated on Tuesday. From this circumstance we may judge of the alarm excited by the prevalence of small-pox in that city.

—"Corn" in England is lower than it has ever been, within living memory; and "corn" over here is about as high as it has been in the same lenght of time. Bu, "corn" in England means wheat, and "corn" over here means maize, and the difference is amazing.

—A United States senatorship depends on the polical status of the Florida legislature, and the political status apparently depends on the attitude to be taken by three or four members elect, who are now claimed by both sides. They were elected as independents.

—Americans will now have another place of pilgrimage in Switzerland. The little village of Motier was his birthplace. On the house in which he was born a marble tablet has been inserted, on which is inscribed: "I, Louis Agassis, the celebrated naturalist, was born in this house the 28th of May, 1807."

—The civil service reform attempted in Texas in the removal of certain office-holders not being satisfactory to the republicans of the state, some of the removed parties have been reinstated, and the weeding out experiment undertaken has been abandoned. Such is the civil service reform of the present administration.

—There are many fruits which never turn sweet until the frost has laid on them. There are many nuts that never fall from the boughs of the forest trees till the frost has opened and ripened them. And there are many elements of life that never grow sweet and beautiful until sorrow comes.

—In consequence of the hard times, the tide of European emigration seems to be setting backward. It is estimated that ten thousand operatives have left Paterson alone within the past year, while recently one day's steamers alone carried out out three or four hundred homeward bound passengers.

—A professional man not far from State street, Boston, returning to his office one day after a substantial lunch, said complacently to his assistant. "Mr. Pitkin, the world looks differently to a man when he has three inches of rum in him." "Yes," replied the junior, without a moment's hesitation, "and he looks different to the world."

—The prohibitionists came very near holding the balance of power in the recent elections in Pennsylvania. Their vote on lieutenant-governor was 4,632, while the majority of the democratic candidate over the republican was 4,679. The democracy has thus a majority of forty-seven over both the republican and the prohibition candidates in that state.

—John Baptiste Hortiz is the oldest white inhabitant of St. Louis. He was born in that city, of Spanish parents, eighty-four years ago. This old gentleman, in his day, imported the first hearse in St. Louis, the first game cock, saw the first steamboat land at the wharf, and was charitable to the extent of raising nineteen orphan children.

—The infant son of the Duke of Edinburgh was baptized yesterday, receiving the name of Albert Alexander Alfred Ernest William. The sponsors were Queen Victoria, the Emperor of Russia, who was represented by the Czarowitz; the German Emperor, represented by the Duke of Connaught; the Prince of Wales, the Crown Princess of Germany and the Duke of Saxe Coburg.

—The New York World has been fixing up a cabinet for the next democratic president. It presents the following alternative list: State department, Bayard or Seymour; treasury, Tilden or Thurman; war office, McClellan or "Dick" Taylor; navy, Pendleton or Charles Levi Woodbury; interior, Hendricks or Casserly; post-office, Eaton or Stevenson; department of justice, Charles O'Conor or Geo. Tickner Curtis.

—When the "Shaughraun" shoots the villain Kinchella in Boucicault's play a pocketbook which he carries in his breast pocket, is supposed to save his life. When this business occurred on the first night, according to the New York Herald, Boucicault rumaged in vain for the saving book. "Where's the book?" he asked in no gentle voice. "It's in my back pocket," whispered the prostrate Kinchella. And to get at it the "Shaughraun" was obliged to roll him over on the stage.

—Portugal, for so small kiangdom, possesses marvellous crown jewels. One of them, the huge Braganza diamond, weighs, at the lowest estimate, 1,680 carats, while the Koh-i-noor, weighs but 106, and the great Orloff diamond only 194 carats. It has been stated that this Braganza stone is imperfectly cut; but even in that case the marvel of its size is only lessened, not removed; for the process of cutting such a rough stone into true "brilliant" shape would only reduce its weight to about 1,000 carats.

—When British noblemen become impecunious, and cannot keep up things at home in the old style, they must e'en do as other men of sense and spirit do—"move their families west." This has been done by the earl of Mountcashel, who is residing in Canada at a very advanced age. His Irish estates becoming hopelessly entangled, has several years ago betook himself to a remnant of his colonial property, taking up his residence at Lobo House, near London, Ontario. Here he devotes himself to agricultural pursuits, and may often be seen driving his wagon, loaded with produce, into the town of London, clad in homespun, like any other farmer. This earl of Mountcashel is the identical "Lord Mountcoffeehouse, the Irish peer," satirically referred to by Lord Byron.

The New Postal Code.

The practical operations of the new postal code are beginning to attract the attention of publishers throughout the country. As only a month remains before the law will go into full effect, it is not surprising that the inquiries of the parties most deeply interested are becoming earnest and to the point. The postmaster general has designated three officials of his department as a committee to frame a series of instructions that will provide for all questions that may arise under the new law. This committee has its hands full in the attempt to settle the vexatious points that are coming in from all sides.

The Chicago newspaper men haue sent in a conundrum that is hard to solve, and that is of exceeding interest to all publishers of morning newspapers which are dispatched to the country by trains that leave very soon after the sheets fall from the press. Such papers can not be taken to the post-office and weighed and reconveyed to the depots; and yet the law requires prepayment. Some way must be devised to meet the spirit, if not the letter, of the law, or the occupation of the troubled publishers will soon resemble Othello's in one respect.

While the law says that prepayment shall be made at the office of publication, it is silent as to the place where a mail shall be weighed. This affords a chance of escape from the harsh and unjust provisions of the crude and bungling act of a spiteful congress. If the post-office authorities will graciously detail a clerk to weigh the newspapers at the train and certify the weight returns to the postmaster, the more distant readers of the morning papers will continue to take in the news of the day along with their coffee, and the business of the publishers will survive this beautiful piece of legislation.

Under this law, newspaper matter and periodical matter must go in different wrappers, as the postage on each must be prepaid, and the rates of the two kinds of matter differ. This will seriously interfere with the business of some publishers, and especially with that of the news companies. Why the two kinds of matter should not pass through the mails at the uniform rate of two cents a pound, is a mystery known only to the sapient men who framed the law that is perplexing the land with its inconsistencies and impracticabilities.

Postmaster-General Jewell's commission is trying to bring order out of the chaotic law, and we trust they will succeed. They have commenced none too soon, and their decisions will be anxiously looked for. The chief clerk of the department, the superintendent of the free delivery system, and one of the special agents, constitute the committee which is invested with powers that can be used to the serious inconvenience of almost every newspaper office in the land. We beg them to be merciful to the unfortunate.

"What is the News from Haralson?"

This feverish question had a "run" for about three weeks after the late congressional election, during the strange delay of sending the officially consolidated returns of Haralson county to the executive department. In the meantime the governor and others made diligent inquiry for the official vote of that county. The eager public curiosity and repressed feeling in this hotly contested district was the cause of much amusement, at least; and we take the liberty of here giving one of the good jokes of the season.

It is generally known that Col. Barnett, secretary of state, is a gentleman of the old school—quiet, precise, dignified and conscientious in the discharge of the duties of his office, which he has held, alternately, for several terms. It should also be observed that the public archives of the state show the colonel's military correspondence to be a model for West Point academy in courtesy, respect for rank, directness and stateliness of diction. Imagine then the surprise in him on receiving through the mail the following inexpressible demand by an unreconstructed and avowed imp of the "kuklux klan," to-wit:

> Rome, November 19.
> Col. Barnett: Please stand on your head and answer this question, and relieve many anxious souls—

The Savannah News brings the gratifying intelligence that a bill will be introdnced in the next General Assembly, looking to the appointment of commissioners for the purpose of registering marriages, births and deaths. The News gives the proposed measure its most cordial approval, and asks its exchanges to do likewise. We do so without reserve. We have already stated the importance of vital statistics, and urged the authorities of Atlanta to take steps to secure them; and are glad to learn that the matter is likely to assume broader proportions. Our Savannah contemporary is certainly right when it says that we need not expect immigration from the North until we can prove, by facts and figures officially gathered, the healthfullness of the state. We cannot compete with the western states in that respect unless we can make a clear case in our favor, and to do that we must first gather the information that the proposed measure calls for.

The late congressional elections produced an unusual number of close contests, from which may grow a large crop of contested seats in the next house of representatives. Cutler beats Phelps, in New Jersey, 4 votes; Harrison has 7 majority in one of the Chicago districts; Egbert beats Curtis, in the Erie district of Pennsylvania, 11 votes; Ainsworth in Iowa, has 59 majority; Walsh, in Maryland, 78 majority; Baker, in Indiana, 58 majority; and Foster of Ohio, Felton of Georgia, Farwell of Illinois, Tufts of Iowa, and Frost of Massachusetts are each elected by less than 100 majority.

The President has heretofore ordered the distribution of rations without the sanction of congress, and a bill was easily passed to send rations to Alabama, ostensibly for the relief of sufferers by the flood, but which were carried far away from the streams and distributed to the negroes about election time to influence their votes. But when the white sufferers of Tuscumbia appeal to the President for aid he suddenly discovers that he has no power to issue rations or to help them in any way. Should not Atlanta do something for the homeless people of the stricken town?

The Washington correspondence of the Louisville Courier-Journal, under date of the 25th inst., says:

The Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has this day written a letter to the Mobile Register, defending himself from the attacks of that journal on account of his utterance on the Louisiana question. Mr. Stephens holds that it was the president's duty to enforce Judge Durell's decree, but says that the law under which Durell acted was unconstitutional, and that the order of Durell was, in respect to the legislature, illegal. In respect to the Arkansas question, Mr. Stephens is decidedly of the opinion that the Hon. Volney Voltaire Smith has no case whatever.

City Matters.

There were several matters of very considerable importance before council last night, and their discussion was quite interesting. The first debate arose upon the question of extra pay to the assessors. Aldermen Keely and Haas made strong speeches against, and Alderman Langston in favor. We have not space to reproduce the arguments, as we would like to do, but desire to affirm our unqualified approval of the action of council in refusing extra compensation. It is wrong. When offcers are elected at stated salaries, there should be no increase of compensation. Indeed it is contrary to the charter of the city. Former councils have indulged in this habit, and the present coucil deserves the thanks of the city for putting their condemnation on this extra pay business. Of course, we mean no censure of the assessors, who no doubt honestly think they are entitled to additional compensation. Let it be distinctly understood that when men seek office and are elected, they must expect the salary attached and nothing more.

An ordinance for the bonding of our floating debt was discussed at some length. Alderman Haas led off in an earnest and excellent speech in favor, Aldermen Ellis, Fowler, Flynn and Langston opposing. Alderman Goodwin met the objection in a sensible speech, endeavoring to show that no damage to the credit of the city would follow from the issue of the bonds. The points of objection were chiefly two; injury to the city's credit by increasing our bonded debt, and the greater cost resulting from this method of disposing of our floating liabilities. But we are not so sure that council did not make a mistake in voting down the ordinance. At any rate, the members of council (and all seem to be looking only to the best interests of the city in the matter) should thoroughly advise themselves on questions of such great moment.

It is an occasional amusement of The Constitution to administer a little punishment—with sound counsel—to our youthful, and sometimes exceedingly erratic, cotemporaries in this city. We do this, also, for their good, as a loved child is corrected. A few days since we thought it proper, while bestowing a little praise, to mete out just reprimand. As we expected, it raised a howl of pain, and both the News and Herald united yesterday in "talking back" to The Constitution, as well as they knew how. But we shall always exercise a paternal supervision, for, though we dislike to see their suffering, we know it is for their benefit. As The Constitution is the most prosperous paper ever published in Atlanta, and has reached a circulation far surpassing anything in Georgia, which we always stand prepared to prove, it would be unkind in us to rasp, other than for their own good, our young and struggling cotemporaries. Of course, when children get mad, they talk naughtily and impudently. But, to say nothing of the extreme elegance and modesty of the Herald's talk about brains and enterprise—elegance and modesty being notoriously its distinguishing traits—no one has ever doubted its enterprise since the "Whitehall street suicide;" and as to brains, its editorials for several months past, in number and brilliancy, certainly exhibit a very large brain development, as may be seen from the following fair specimen, perhaps the most powerful, eloquent, and acceptable to their readers, of all their recent editorials. That it may lose none of its brilliancy and effect, we transfer it entire, leads and all, to our columns.

"We had nothing special to write editorials about this morning, so we give news instead."—Herald Editorial, 22d instant.

This exhaustive effort conclusively shows that all the brains of the Georgia press are concentrated in one paper.

Mr. L. L. Lamar, the tax collector of Hancock county, made his final settlement for this year's taxes with the comptroller yesterday. The taxes of that county amount to about $17,500. Mr. Lamar is the first on the list this year, and is nearly a month ahead of time, as he has by law until the 15th of December. He says that he has also settled for the county taxes. His promptness shows him to be a good and efficient officer.

Charleston, November 27.—A freight railroad connecting the Charleston depot of the South Carolinia railroad and Northeastern railroad with the upper wharves, has been completed and will be extended along the entire wharves, so as to save drayage and delay in transfering through freights. A powerful steam dredge chartered by the city is at work on the bar, and has already, according to the report of Prof. Williford added two feet to the average depth of the water on the principal shoals. This dredging is independent of the operations in another channel by the government, and the determination is to persevere until a depth of water sufficient to admit the largest ocean vessels that can be obtained.

TILTON VS. BEECHER.

Squabbling About the Day of Trial.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

New York, November 27.—Tilton's counsel appeared before Judge Nelson, of the Brooklyn city court to-day, and moved to have an early day fixed for the trial of the criminal suit of libel against his client, brought by Beecher. It was urged that the 8th of December be appointed, in case the civil suit of Tilton vs. Beecher was not ready for trial. District Attorney Winslow objected. He alone had power by law to name the day for the trial of a criminal suit. He was as anxious for the trial as the opposing counsel, but the time must be left to him as a part of his official duty. The judge held the matter under advisement.

WHIPPED AND PILLORIED.

Women Climbing a Roof and Laughing at Men as they Squirmed Under the Lash.

Wilmington, Del., November 21.—The first installment of the semi annual whippings in this county took place at New Castle at noon to-day About 400 people crowded themselves into the jail yard, some of whom were women, who seemed to enjoy the spectacle with equal delight with the men. Others of the same sex mounted the roof of the sheriff's dwelling, and being warmly robed sat there laughing at the sufferings of those who were fastened to the post.

The castigation was administered by William H. Lamson, the new sheriff, who was sworn in a week ago. He was very partial in the exercise of his duty, favoring some and whipping others witn great severity. He disobeyed in many instances the injunction, "well laid on," and with determination written on his face, wielded the cat with a swift and sudden jerk in others. The offences were all of a like nature, none being punished for anything other than larceny. Whatever disparity was intended by the court, was meted out by it in the terms of imprisonment, and in other ways, so that the sheriff should have been impartial in carrying out that portion of the sentence which the law imposed upon him. He chose to act differently, however, and once more exhibited the inequality of Delaware's peculiar mode of punishment.

As a sort of prelude to the whipping, three men were pilloried, each for an hour, as a part of the punishment for the day. They were John T. Dolan, Edward Sanders and George Gilbert, all of whom we shall speak again presently. Edward Johnson, a white horse thief, was the first victim of the lash, and his back was reddened under twenty blows, lightly laid on. He bore his punishment quietly and with a subdued spirit, without flinching. He was then remanded to jail for three years. William Gilbert took his twenty lashes for the larceny of a horse, with greater indications of pain, the cat being more heavily laid on. When released he sprang away from the post saying "How's that for high, sheriff?" He has two years to serve in jail. Joseph Stansbury had stolen a watch, for which he got one year's imprisonment and twenty lashes lightly laid on, which he received quietly. He will wear a convict's jacket for six months after discharge. Henry H. Wilson, for the larceny of chickens, was sentenced to receive fifteen lashes, but sixteen were administered, and the sheriff was in the act of laying on the seventeenth, when he was stopped by the warden. Wilson writhed considerably under his punishment. A term of six months awaits him, and a convict's jacket for six months afterward.

Shadrach Trusty, a colored lad, gave evidence of much suffering during the whipping, but walked laughingly away from the post after it was over. He jumped and floundered about very much, and several times pulled out his hands from the hasps, which were too large to hold him firmly to the post. Finally his hands were wrapped, and he broke away no more. At one time he kicked viciously at the sheriff, and all his gyrations brought out tremendous laughter and cheering from the crowd. Besides his twenty lashes, he has yet six months' imprisonment to serve, and then a convict's jacket to wear for a similar period.

Clayton Earle (colored) sixty-five years of age, paid the penalty of an effort to steal corn in twelve lashes, which were well laid on, and under which he writhed greatly. His body also shook like an aspen. He was dismissed with the convict's jacket. Clayton is the same individual who brought suit against his accuser in the United States court for an alleged attempt to control his vote by threats and intimidations. The case has not yet been tried.

The severest flogging was visited upon Charles Brown, who had been convicted of the larceny of clothing. For some reason the sheriff spared not the coat, but laid it on heavily, which Brown bore without a murmur, and without any indications of pain. His back was much marked, more so than any of the rest, being covered with great red welts, but no blood was drawn. Blood did not appear upon the backs of any. Brown has entered upon a year's imprisonment, and will afterwards wear a convict's jacket for six months. John T. Dolson (white) who had stolen a horse, was the last to receive his punishment. He was both young and handsome, and in his face exhibited the pain which he was suffering, and elicited much sympathy.—Baltimore American.

A TALE OF WOE.

He Deserted his own True Love to Run Away with a Girl named Sarah.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

"He's scooted with another woman!" exclaimed a corpulent female, affected with asthma, as she pulled herself through the door of the Central station yesterday afternoon.

The police sergeants are never hasty about expressing their opinion, and the one in charge of the station looked at the woman and didn't even nod his head for her to go on. The woman took a chair, or nearly two chairs, puffed away like a hack horse for several minutes, and then, as the tears came to her eyes, she exclaimed:

"I'll never forgive him, and if he's caught you may sentence him for life! To think that after we've lived together these five years and better he should desert his own true love and run away with a girl named Sarah!"

"You refer to your husband, I suppose," said the sergeant, cautiously.

"What other woman's husband would I be referring to?" she demanded. "Of course its my husband—my John Henry Polk!"

"Ard I infer that he has deserted you?"

"That's what he's done—deserted me and run off with a girl named Sarah something or other, and I'm left here without a friend!"

"He shouldn't have done that!" remarked the sergeant, after a long pause.

"No, he shouldn't" she replied. "Why, what was he when I married him? Didn't I take him when he was a good-for-nothing, insignificant whiffet of sixteen and bring him up to be what he is? And now this is my return!"

She sobbed awa for a while and then went on.

"He called me his darling—his dear gazelle, and he said that I was sugar melted over, and all that, and I believed it—yes, believed it like the fool I am."

"And he's gone, eh?"

"Gone! Didn't I say he'd gone! I can hardly believe it, though, when I look over the letter he wrote me, and see how he called me his shining angel and his noonday star. I can hardly realize that he has left me and taken up with a freckled-nose girl."

"It's sad—very sad," sighed the sergeant.

"You don't know my feeling," she replied; "don't begin to realize how this heart of mine is wrenched and upset! I wish you'd catch him, sir. I wish you'd bring him back here and stand him over there and leave me over here, and lock the doors for about two minutes?"

"Be calm, madam," replied the sergeant.

"Carm! How can I be carm? When I think of John Henry, and Sarah, and dear gazelle, and shining angel and noonday star, can I bid my heart be carm?

She left her husband's description and went away, and the police will catch him if they can.

THE RECONNOITRE.

Looking Out the Railroad Route.

Iron Bonds Between Knoxville and Macon.

Return of Mayor Staub from the Mountains.

A Feasible, Economical Route Found to Ducktown.

Something of the Trip and its Results.

[Knoxville Press and Herald.]

Yesterday morning Mayor Staub reached the city, having been absent over two weeks, accompanying Gen. Stuart in the reconnoitre of the country south to the Georgia state line, with a view to the selection of the most feasible route for the proposed Knoxville and Macon railroad. Gen. Stuart, it will be collected, is an experienced civil engineer, and was sent out by the company of northern gentlemen who have leased the Knoxville and Charleston railroad, to make the reconnoitre, and upon his report the company bases its action. Upon arriving in Knoxville he was ment by Mayor Staub, and other prominent citizens, and officials of the city, who displayed great interest in the projected work. Upon the urgent solicitation of Gen. Stuart, and Hon. Jere Cowles of Macon, that the mayor should accompany the party, Mr. Staub, with that commendable public spirit with which he is so largely imbued, determined to make the trip, so that he might personably be informed of the nature of the country reconnoitred, and the practicability and advisability of the projected railroad.

During the past summer, Mr. Meyer, an engineer in the employ of the lessees, had reconnoitered the country south to Murphy, N. C., and reported the route as feasible, but highly expensive. To find, if possible, an easier, and probably a better route, was the purpose for which Gen. Stuart was sent out.

Leaving Knoxville on Tuesday, the 10th inst., the party proceeded over the Knoxville and Charleston railroad to Maryville, and from thence started out on their work, and spent the subsequent two weeks in an arduous, thorough, and, it gives us pleasure to state, a satisfactory reconnoiter. The entire country was gone over, with Fucktown, in Polk county, as the present objective point. The party reached Cleveland on last Tuesday, on their return. From thence Mayor Staub came to Knoxville, and yesterday morning Gen. Stuart, with Col. Jerry Cowles, started for Atlanta, Macon, etc., to gather statistics and learn of the progress of railroad enterprises in Georgia.

Gen. Stuart's report will be made to Mr. Allen Hay, of Montreal, and the gentlemen associated with him in the enterprise, about the first of January next. Gen. Stuart was reticent concerning the particular routes of his reconnoitre, but informed Mayor Staub that he should certainly recommend the building of the road, as being entirely feasible, moderately economical and promising good returns for the investment.

Mayor Staub informs us that after leaving Maryville the party passed down the old surveyed route to Tellico Plains, crossing the little Tennessee river near Henley's ford, eighteen miles from Maryville. Thence crossing the Tellico they followed Wild Cat creek to Coco creek, and resuming a more direct southerly line, followed the Hiwassee towards Turtletown creek, twelve miles from Ducktown. To this point there was no hesitation, the route being easy and well defined, and at an average elevation of 1660 feet above the sea level. Here, however, the Hiwassee must be crossed, from the River mountains to the Unaka mountains, the streams passing between the two ranges. To span the Hiwassee, the best point found was about three miles below Taylor's Ferry, and this will necessitate a bridge, about 700 feet long and about 400 feet above the river.

A depression in the Unaka Mountains, requiring considerable tunneling is the other alternative, but Gen. Stuart thought the bridge crossing would be preferable and the least expensive.

From the Hiwassee bridge thence to Ducktown the route is accessible, another bridge being required over the Oconee near the state line. The Tellico and Oconee bridges would be light; the Little Tennessee more expensive, but not heavily so; and the Hiwassee a costly structure. This route is westerly and southwesterly of Meyer's survey to Murphy, and Mayor Staub will receive the approval of Gen. Stuart.

Other possible routes were gone over, with Ducktown still the objective point, but none found so favorable as that above described. Nearer to Meyer's survey, at Missemore's toll gate, about 2,050 feet above the sea level, was the next best route south of Tellico, but this required all the bridges on the other route, with the addition of at least two tunnels, one about 1,100 feet in length, and the other about 600 feet.

Upon reaching Ducktown the party had a pleasant time in visiting the mines, under the guidauce of Mr. August Raht assistant superintendent of the Ducktown mines.

From Ducktown a trip was taken to Murphy, and notes taken of the character of the country, and the mineral wealth, developed and undeveloped.

Returning to Ducktown the party was met by Hon. J. P. Cobb, of Ellijay, who spoke confidently of the early completion of the railroad from Marietta to Ellijay, in propect of the road being a part of the Knoxville and Macon railroad.

At Cleveland, on Thursday, last, they were met by Mr. Julius E. Raht, and had an interesting and instructive conversation with that gentleman on mineral resources of the region along the route to Ducktown, a subject upon which Mr. Rath is thoroughly at home. Mr. Raht expressed a lively interest in the comtemplated enterprise, and intimated that his company would probably be willing to subscribe liberally to the stock.

Mayor Staub leans to the opinion that Gen. Stuart will recommed the immediate building of a narrow guage railway, over the reconnoitred route, although Col. Cowles is known to be adverse to the narrow guage. However, that is a matter to be determined. Gen. Stuart, in conversation with the mayor, stated that the lessees of the Knoxville and Charleston railroad were amply able to build the line without aid from the counties and town corporations along the road. Yet these gentlemen were mainly Scotch residents of Montreal, and had been given the impression—by unjust publications, doubtless—that property was insecure in this section, and would perhaps desire stock to be so taken along the line as to furnish a guarantee of "protection." So many false statements have gone abroad about our people that it is not surprising that well-intentioned northern men and foreigners should regard us an hardly semi-civilized. Gen. Stuart, however, assured Mayor Staub that he carried away with him the most pleasant impressions of the country and the citizens whom he had met, and would do all in his power to controvert these reports.

Major Staub is worthy of the warmest commendation for the unselfish public spirit he has displayed in leaving his private business to take a long and arduous trip solely that his information thus gleaned may now be of interest to our citizens, and at some future time, of practical benefit to Knoxville.

Rescue of Two Sisters.

A Distressing Story.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

Chicago, Nov. 27.—The following is an extract from the official dispatch of Col. Miles, received at Lieut. Gen. Sheridan's headquarters this morning. It refers to the girls whose rescue from the Indians was announced sometime ago: During the fight two white girls were rescued from the Indians. It appears that these sisters, Adelaide and Julia Seaman, aged three and seven years respectively, were captured in Kansas, en route to Colorado form Geogia. They state that their father, mother, brother and one sister were murdered, and that they and two older sisters were kept prisoners. They have no knowledge of the whereabouts of their sisters. Their story of woe and suffering is simply too terrible to relate. They were almost naked and nearly starved. They are now under Surgeon Waters, and will receive every care and attention, and when strong enough to endure the journey will be forwarded to Leavenworth. It is most earnestly recommended that ample annual provisions be made for these children by the government out of the annuity appropriation for the benefit of the Cheyenne Indians. It is officially stated that no whites have entered the Black Hills region since the military expedition.

The Longshoremen's Strike.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

New York, November 27.—The general strike of the longshoremen went into effect this morning. They have struck work all over the city. Men at work on the French line consider themselves under an obligation to the company, and are furnishing work on steamers for France for nothing. This, they say, is only right, as the company have paid them regular rates all along. The same course was pursued at the pier of the Atlas line. About one thousand police men are scattered along the piers on the North and East rivers, and the police boat is moored at a convenient point, ready to convey men to any point where trouble might occur.

The Hamburg steamship company which has been in the docks at Hoboken, to-day offered to pay sixty and sixty-five dollars per month to twenty-four longshoremen and forty cents an hour over work, which was refused. The coal-heavers in the employ of two firms who furnish coal for steamship companies and Hoboken and for several lines in New York also went on a strike until the demand of the longshoremen are acceded to. Everything is quiet.

A Murderess Gives Birth to a Child While in Jail.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

Bathurst, N. B., November 27.—Mrs. Poullain, who murdered her husband, and is now under sentence of death, gave birth to a male child, Thursday night, in jail. Gallion, before his execution, acknowledged the paternity of the child. Mrs. Poullain is sentenced to be hung on the 4th of January.

The Weather.

Washington, November 27.—For the South Atlantic and Gulf states, fair weather will prevail, with east to south winds, and decidedly high barometer and slight change in temperature.

THE LIFE OF THE DANCERS.

Their Stories as Told by Themselves at Rehearsal.

Why they are on the Stage—The Many Years of Training Required to Produce a Star—The Necessity for Constant Practice that Makes their Life Laborious.

Entering the Twenty-fourth street door and traversing a long, narrow, dark passage, the visitor found himself recently on the great stage of the Grand Opera House The time for the rehearsal had not arrived, and only a few of the dancers were present. Long sunbeams streamed through the windows of the auditorium and fell on the crimson seats and carpets, making the stage on which a few gas jets were lighted, uninviting even to dreariness. Stage carpenters were hammering, messengers were running hither and thither with noisy feet, and small children were racing over the stage, playing hide and seek behind the wings, screaming at the top of their shrill voices, and defying all the efforts of their tidy little matron to keep them quiet. They were to assist in the grand marches, or were to be fairies and elfs. From these little mites grow the future stars that will twinkle in the dramatic firmament. In all this deafening noise the actors in the dramatic part of the play were rehearsing.

By twelve o'clock the dancers had all assembled. The ballet girls hurried to the dressing rooms to dress for the rehearsal, for although it was an undress rehearsal, still a suitable dancing costume had to be donned, as long dresses are fatal to artistic dancing. The "marching" girls, many of whom are novices, needed no change, and they waited, sitting in the body of the house and in the wings. The new comers looked timidly about, or collected in little groups chatting in whispers. Many of them conversed cheerfully with the visitor.

NOVICES ON THE STAGE.

"No," said a rosy-cheeked, brown-haired miss, "I never played anywhere before, but I wasn't doing anything at home and thought I'd try this." "It's very hard getting any work to do," joined in another—a pale-faced, thoughtful girl. "When we can get sewing it's almost impossible to support ourselves, and now that we cannot get work at any price, I was glad to come here. Six dollars a week is better than starving. I didn't want to come at all, but I like it better than I thought I should."

A well-dressed miss with a refined face was sitting alone in the dress circle looking upon the rehearsal. She started a little at the visitor's abrupt question, but at length she said: "No, I have never been on the stage before, and I am sure I don't know what my friends would say if they knew I was here now. I came half from curiosity, and half because I have long had a great desire to become an actress. This is not the best place in the world to begin in, but it is a commencement. I suppose I shall have to commence at the foot of the ladder. Why not? Miss Charlotte Cushman, in her farewell speech the other evening, said that she had once been a poor girl. Look at her now. I'm going to try, anyway. My great anxiety," she continued, "is to keep this from my friends. What would they say if they knew I was here? But I don't think I shall be recognized, as I have few friends in the city. I am here alone, and have been trying to write for the magazines. It seems like a dream," and then suddenly seeming to realize that she was talking to a stranger, she became watchful and reserved again. With many of the others the story was the same, No work to do, no hope of getting anything these hard times. Six dollars a week in spangled dress and glittering helmet much better than starvation or slaving with the needle.

"We advertised for two hundred girls," said the manager, "and over eight hundred applied for situations. Among this number there were school teachers, music teachers, and many that you would never think of seeing here. It's the hard times, I suppose."

THE STARS.

By this time the dancers had assembled on the stage and the rehearsal was begun. While the younger dancers were performing their intricate dances, a small black-eyed woman attracted attention to one of the wings at the back of the stage, now standing on the tips of her toes, and then bending until her head almost touched the floor. "That is Mlle. Eugenie Lupo. The other is Mlle Bonfanti," said the manager. "They are the best dancers in the country. We pay them $250 a week. Look at Lupo. She is constantly practising in that way. She will stand for hours right there, paying no attention to any one, continually posturing. You'll notice that the best dancers when not rehearsing are doing the same. It is necessary to keep themselves supple. A queer thing about it is that they won't do this at home, but seem to think they must come on the stage in costume to practice. Mlle. Lupo won't dance to-day."

The manager was right, and the visitor noticed that as soon as a dance was executed instead of resting the dancers generally began to practice difficult steps, and to take difficult postures. A very noticeable feature, to a stranger, was the air of business with which all this was done. It was work, hard wark, and they engaged in it as such, reserving their fascinating smiles and joyous gestures for the public.

WORK AND SUFFERING.

"Let me introduce you to Miss Lizzie Dark and to Miss Katie Wilson," said the manager. "They can tell you all about the work of a danseuse." Miss Dark, a large, fair English girl, "the soul of good nature," according to all, and Miss Wilson, a beautiful Baltimorean, would be glad to impart any information in their power. It was indeed a profession that required much and long continued hard work. There was nothing painful about the training, if commenced at an early age; "but," said Miss Wilson, "it is right hard work if one commences after twelve years of age. After the limbs have begun to set there is much painful work to be done." "And one must never cease work," said Miss Dark, "if she hopes to ever become a premiere. Look where Lupo is, by hard work. The lazy ones don't get there. And then if we are ill for only a few weeks it's worse than an attack of the rheumatism to commence again. Why, I have been so sore and stiff after dancing at such a time that I felt like old Rip Van Winkle after his twenty years' sleep. First it's in my knee, then it's in my elbow." And then the conversation changed.

"A person never makes a great dancer," said Irme Kiralfy, the bullet master, "unless she begins when very young. All of best dancers started when three, four or five years old, and then the course of training occupies ten or twelve years. I commenced in my native country, Hungary, when only three, and when five I was a star, earning as much money as I have ever made since by dancing. I was dancing my native dances. Afterwards I received instructions in the Parisian school, and was able not only to execute all known dances but to invent new ones. It is more than training that makes a premiere, it is the genius for it, the disposition, the will that says 'I will make an artist.' It is our profession as in all others. Here and there is one who was born an artist, with a well-turned form and beautiful face, and the will that makes succes certain. Then there are those who have all physical qualifications, and yet fail for the want of the proper disposition."

"Many imagine that dancers have steel soles in their slippers, that they may stand on their toes. Is it so?"

"Oh, no, no, no! Steel soles! Impossible? They can stand on their bare toes as well. I myself have danced our dances with bare feet; and then the will comes in again. If one thinks 'it will hurt my toes, she can never dance. But if one says, I will stand on my toes,' then the thing is done."

The Infamous Cotton Ring.

[Cincinnati Commercial.]

It is understtood that among other recommendations the secretary of the treasury will advise that the cotton claims now pending before the treasury department be transferred to the court of claims. This is a recommendation that ought to be made, or the abolition of the cotton claims division seems to be imperatively demanded. The amount of the claims pending is in round numbers, fourteen millions of dollars, which is for cotton seized subsequent to instructions from the treasury department in 1865, forbidding such seizure, and the money now lies in the treasury. The division was organized by William E. Chandler, assistant secretary under McCulloch, and it is asserted that Chandler is about the only successful practitioner before the division. The head of the division is a man named Noer, who was formerly one of Pinkerton's detectives, and his chief assistant is Major Fessenden, of Maine, who was dismissed from the army for the embezzlement of $20,000 while he was holding the position of paymaster. Although the bureau has been in existence since 1865, less than a million of dollars has been refunded for cotton unlawfully seized. In that time nearly $300,000 have been appropriated to defend suits brought for the recovery of this cotton, while it is reasonably certain that $20,000 should have been ample for the purpose, the large excess having gone, it is charged, into the pockets of men claiming to work in the government interest, but who have, in fact, done nothing. Cotton claimants say that unless they employ Wm. E. Chandler they can get no satisfaction from the division, and that even then the cases are informally appealed to the court of claims, where they can do nothing without the assistance of Ben Butler. They outline a ring consisting of Noer, Fessenden, Chandler, Butler and others, who bleed the claimants unmercifully.

Whatever may be the faet regarding these allegations, it seems clear that an ex-army officer dismissed for embezzlement, ought not to be trusted with the disposition of a fund nearly as large as the Geneva award. The very gravest charges of bold attempts by these men to black-mail claimants are made freely. The claimants say that sooner or latter in the prosecution of their claims they are advised by the friends of the cotton ring, as it is called, to employ Chandler, who extorts most exorbitant fees, as the quickest and surest way to secure the money.

About a year ago Secretary Richardson appointed Judge Frazier, of Indiana, to audit these claims, allowing him a salary of ten thousand dollars a year. There is no shadow in the law for the appointment, nor is there any use in it, as Frazier also accepts the representations of Noer and Fessenden, who put matters in the light they most desire. An effort made last winter to have the matter investigated will be repeated at the coming session, and will be this time succesful it is thought, and many leading congressmen who were loth then to believe the charges made in this connection have since become convinced of them, and will urge action.

It Positively Produces a Permanent Cure.

It is strange yet true, that as a rule it is the brightest intellects, the best members of society become addicted to this diseased appetite. A habit which makes them slaves, beclouds their minds, ruins their dispositions, and gives them in their more natural moments a hatred of self as well as a feeling that everybody despises them—to such an extent that society has no charms. But thanks to the Giver of all good, this morbid, terrible habit, and degraded condition, as well as all of the desire and feeling for opiates in any form is soon removed by this remarkable antidote, entirely so, and the weakened body and mind are invigorated, given renewed health until love and hope take the place of despondency and doubt. Though you may not be afflicted with the habit of using Morphine, Laudanum, or other forms of Opium, some friend may be, and you know it not, therefore at me ask you, in the name of suffering humanity to pass this on. By so doing you may reap the reward of those who do good. Delay not.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

Hanging of George Simms (Colored) at Covington.

He Confesses the Deed at the Last Moment.

Yesterday at one o'clock George Simms (colored) was hung at Covington for an outrage committed on the person of an aged white lady, Mrs. Wallace, residing near Alcora bridge, on the Georgia railroad, on Sunday morning, November 2nd, 1873.

The Covington Enterprise gives the following full account of the execution:

On yesterday we went to the cell of George Simms to hear from his own lips the confession of his guilt. He said: "Mr. Hawkins, I sent for you to tell you a thing I have never told a living soul. I am guilty! I did outrage the woman! I stood out as long as I could but God told me I was lost if I did not own up! I believe now he will answer my prayers! I have made peace with the world! When I am dead I want you, Dr. Branham and Dr. Shelby to take my body and use it as you please, and when you get through with it send it to my mother at Greensboro, or bury it decently in Covington." At this moment two colored preachers tapped at the door and asked to be admitted. After they entered a hymn was read and an impressive prayer offered. During prayer George wept bitterly.

HIS ARREST AND CONVICTION!

The crime was committed on Sunday, the second of November, 1873, he was arrested on Monday, the 3d, tried and convicted on Tuesday, the 4th, and sentenced to be hung on the 19th of January, his case was carried to the supreme court and a new trial refused, he was re-sentenced in September to be hung to-day.

FORMER HANGINGS IN NEWTON.

It may not be amiss to record in this connection the hangman's work in Newton county since the year 1822. The first hanging after that date was that of Anderson, Sophie and Warren White, who murdered their master in a corn field and after he was dead tied a rope around his neck and fastened his body to a wild and spirited horse which carried it swiftly direct to the door of his residence. This occurred on the place where Col. Atkins now resides, and the three black murderers paid their penalty upon the gallows on the 26th of April, 1833. The next was Lewis Rakestraw, who murdered his wife. He was hung on the 25th of March, 1836. In October of 1850 Jeff. Hardeman, who was a perfect picture of George Simms, perished upon the scaffold for outraging a woman. On the last Friday in November, 1863, Elbert Cody was hung for murder—on the same day Albert Hinton was hung for burning his master's residence. These were all negroes—a white man has never been hung in this county.

JUDGE LYNCH!

The only man ever lynched in this county was a negro who committed an unpardonable crime. On the 3rd of September, 1842, in Sheffield district, this negro was seized upon the highway in broad daylight by a company of unknown men, and carried to an old field where he was securely fastened to a stump, and pine knots were packed around him and fired. In one hour he was burned to death. The reporter's pen, like the wind goeth where it listeth, and we now turn a new page and carry our readers to the criminal's lonely dungeon, and there can hear the sad words of a dying man.

LIFE AND HISTORY OF THE PRISONER.

George was born on the 3rd of January, 1854, near Elberton, Ga. He left that county in 1869 charged with a similar crime. He worked in Oglethorpe county one year and left with two warrants hanging over him. He then went to Greensboro and obtained a situation on the railroad. Our readers know the rest!

LAST NIGHT ON EARTH!

On last night at about 7 o'clock the dim light of a tallow candle threw its rays upon the lonely walls of this unfortunate man's silent cell for the first time since his imprisonment. He looked pitiful in the extreme—but he was not alone—two colored preachers were by his side who came to pray the night away for his salvation. At twelve o'clock we bade him a sad adieu; he was praying a mournful and passionate prayer when we left him.

THE PRISONER'S LAST HOURS.

At an early hour this morning we noticed a stern and solemn look upon the face of sheriff Anderson, as he slowly turned his footsteps toward the jail. He had a disagreeable duty to perform and the thought of it seemed working in his brain. As he unlocked the iron doors the rattling of the rusty chain by which the condemned negro was fastened, grated harshly upon the granite floor. The criminal knew that it was the last time that any one would ever open those doors to bring him food. George was half naked and lay stretched full length upon a dirty blanket. He spoke pleasantly, and told the sheriff he could not eat. The sheriff then examined the lock on the chain which bound the prisoner to the floor, and discovered that it was ruined—George had picked it with the bail of a tin bucket, but failed to unlock it. With a chisel and hammer the lock was shattered and the criminal released. He trembled slightly when the chain fell. He is now a mere wreck, having lost fully forty pounds since his arrest. In a few minutes the doors were relocked and the prisoner left alone. We then went to the rear of the jail and climbing upon the gallows to his window we called to him and he answered, "Great God! Mr. Hawkins, have you come at last? I am guilty, and I want you to know it. I don't want to die." George appeared excited and desired to be allowed to relate a history of his life. Having no time to spare we had to leave him and refuse to hear his history. Near noon, Col. Anderson and his guard took George from the jail and conducted him to the gallows. There were nine steps to the stand and the prisoner trembled severely as he neared the top. The gallows was strong and the trap was properly arranged. The enclosure being small there were only a few to witness the sickly spectacle, although there were hundreds around the jail.

THE HANGING.

At 40 minutes after 12 o'clock he was taken from the jail, carried to the gallows, and after being asked what he had to say, he replied, "Nothing I am safe! Meet me in heaven, Mr. Hawkins! Good-bye, friends!" The white cap was then pulled over his face and in an instant the dull sound of the wooden trigger was heard—the trap-door dropped violently—George Simms dangled in the air between heaven and earth—four dying gasps and the agony was over. He spun around a few times and his tongue lolled out between his teeth, his body swung straight—his neck was broke—he was dead! In 13 minutes Dr. Hendrick pronounced life extinct. He was then cut down and his remains turned over to the proper authorities.

HUNDREDS of ladies and gentlemen are visiting our beautiful pianos, the Chickering Square Grand costing a thousand dollars, and another costing six hundred dollars. These pianos, to be given to our subscribers on or before December 31st, are at Turner, Braumuller & Barth's "Old Southern Music House," and Guilford, Wood & Co.'s. Go and see them.

Compensation of County Officers.

The concluding paragraph of our article on "the collection of taxes" yesterday was slightly mixed. In order to give our readers a more comprehensive view of the matter, we give the commissions paid the Receivers for state and county tax:

Chatham county, $8,317 75.
Fulton county, $7,074 19.
Richmond county, $6,735 99.

The tax collector gets double the per cent. on the county tax that the receiver does.

While the receiver gets a per cent. on the whole amount of the digest, the collector receives a commission on the amount absolutely collected by him. The difference in the amounts received by the receiver and the collector is therefore not very great.

CITY subscribers will please call at the office and secure their cards in the distribution before too late. The $1000 in gold, or one of the pianos, should be won by Atlanta this time.

Terrible Murder in McDonough.

Last Monday Mose Dobbins, Tom Jones, Mell Canady, and John Warren, all more or less under the influence of liquor, got into a little difficulty on the public square in McDonough, Henry county. Some words passed but no blows. The difficulty was apparently settled, and the four men left the square and went behind a bar-room, where they remained some little time, when John Warren and Mell Canady went back on the public square. Some citizens knowing there been a difficulty bruing, suspicioned there was something wrong, and went to look after it, when they found Mose Dobbins, a young man about thirty years of age, with his throat cut from ear to ear, and breathing his last.

Warren and Canady were araested and lodged in jail, one had a brickbat inside of the breast of his coat, and the other had fresh blood on his clothes when they were arrested. Up to Wednesday they had made no confession, or throwed any light on the matter. Tom Jones, who is supposed to be the murderer made his escape, and had not been captured up to this writing. Warren and Canady are held as accessaries before the fact.—Griffin Messenger.

THE McDOWELL CASE.

Heavy Suit Against the Georgia Railroad.

A representative of THE CONSTITUTION called yesterday at the office of Messrs. Hilliard & deGraffenried to inquire about the heavy suit which they have recently started against the Georgia railroad and banking company. The suit is brought by Thomas McDowell to recover damages for the recent killing of Miss Lizzie C. McDowell, the plaintiff's daughter, at the Whitehall street crossing by the engine South Carolina.

Judge H. W. Hilliard was found seated within, and at once signified his perfect willingness to give any information about his side of the case that it would be proper to make public.

Reporter—Is it true, judge, that you have been retained by Mr. McDowell to bring suit against the Georgia road?

Judge H.—Yes, sir. A few weeks after the horrible occurrence Mr. McDowell called at our office. He was a stranger to me, and until he came I had no intimation of any intention on his part to commence the action. He stated his case, giving fully all the facts relative to the brutal massacre of his daughter, and then asked our opinion. Myself and partner, Mr. deGraffenried, told him that we had no doubt but that the road could be made responsible in damages. Mr. McDowell then instructed us to commence the action.

Reporter—When did you commence the suit, and what damages does Mr. McDowell claim?

Judge H.—The suit was commenced on last Saturday the 19th inst. On that day the papers were filed in the clerk's office. The damages sued for are laid at

FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

This amount may at first blush appear to be very large; that the facts of the case, in my opinion, will warrant a heavy recovery. Here is a father suing for the death of his child—a young lady just eighteen years of age, and killed under circumstances as horrible as any that have ever shocked the feelings of this community. In the discharge of an errand for a young friend she is swept into eternity and mangled, under the wheels of an engine in open day, and at a crowded thoroughfare. Were the carelessness that killed her tolerated by our courts, not a day would pass but that some one of our wives, sisters, and daughters would share her fate. We expect that these facts will go far towards inducing a jury to give exemplary damages.

Reporter—Have you satisfied yourself judge, that you can show carelessness on the part of the road?

Judge H—. Of that I have no doubt. Before bringing this suit, Mr. DeGraffenried and myself gave this case a very careful investigation. We have examined a great many authorities touching the question of negligence by railroads, and their duties at public crossings. The engine which killed Miss McDowell is the "South Carolina." It has been in the employ of the Georgia railroad for thirty years. This engine through criminal neglect, as we shall argue, has not been provided with any of the modern improvements in machinery. When moving at a speed at all rapid it is impossible to stop her as any other engine can be stopped. Consequently, although the engineer discovered that Miss McDowell had been struck by his tender, he was unable to check up before she had been crushed and mangled to death beneath his wheels. We expect to show that this neglect of itself will make the company responsible.

Reporter—Is this the sole ground upon which you base your hopes of recovery?

Judge H.—No, sir. In addition we shall try to show that the rate of speed, at which the engine "South Carolina" was backing upon the crossing, was entirely unwarranted by law. It is reported that the engine was not only running at the rate of nine or ten miles an hour, but that at the time of the tragedy, she was actually engaged in racing with another engine, to see which could first reach a certain switch. When Miss McDowel was first struck, she had her attention attracted toward a passing train, and did not notice this engine until it was immediately upon her. Then, at the speed with which it was moving, escape was hopeless. No strong man could have gotten out of the way, much less a frail and helpless girl. The code of Georgia is very explicit upon the duties of engineers in passing crossings. It not only requires them to blow their whistles, but, in section 70, to approach a crossing at such a slow speed as to enable them to stop at once, should anything be discovered upon it. We feel assured that we can prove that the "South Carolina" was violating this law at the time of the killing.

Reporter.—Well Judge, is this your whole case?

Judge H.—No sir; we have other points, as well as a great many authorities, but for obvious reasons, we prefer not to have them published at this time. If the facts in this case do not make the Georgia railroad responsible, then, in our humble opinion, the coming legislature should be appealed to, and should he asked to frame a law, defining what railroad responsibility for human life is. The present laws, upon this supposition, certainly afford it very little protection.

Reporter—I suppose you are looking forward to a hard fight.

Judge H.—Yes sir, we realize that we are fighting a large and powerful corporation, and expect to have opposed to us very eminent attorneys, in fact the best legal talent that corporation can procure. This will not deter us from doing what we believe to be our duty by our client. We have gone into the fight in earnest, and shall fight it through to the end. We know that it will go to the supreme court, and we will try to fight it there as hard as we expect to fight it in the court below. We are determined to make this a test case; not only because of our client, but for the people of this state. We are after a decision which shall clearly and emphatically define the obligations of railroads at public crossings, and their responsibilities for loss of life or property.

Here the interview closed, and the reporter withdrew feeling, as Judge Hilliard had remarked that we are upon the eve of another railroad fight, and of as big a one as we usurlly have.

Law Points.

Andrew Jackson and Lewis Atkins had a preliminary trial before Justice Ezzard, Thursday, for stealing Mr. M. C. Kiser's cow. The evidence showed that Atkins had stolen the cow and sold her to a butcher. The next day Mr Kiser missed the cow, and had a conversation with Lewis in which he remarked something about the chain gang. That night the sharp Lewis stole the cow from the butcher and carried her back to Mr. Kiser. The court was lost in admiration at the talents displayed by Mr. Lewis in thus stealing both ways, and sent him to jail to keep him out of temptation. Andrew Jackson was discharged.

A darkey named James Glover was tried before Justice McConnell for carrying concealed weapons. He showed that he didn't own the pistol, and that it was empty, and was discharged.

Charles Hatch was also arraigned in this court for assault and battery, but settled his case.

George Hamilton, a gentleman of color, knocked a negro girl in the head with a bottle yesterday about noon, and took to his heels. The bottle will never hold any water again, and when that girl got up a half hour after she had been struck, she wanted to know if the lightning had hit anybody else.

George made good use of his legs, and took fences and everything else that came in his way. He was followed by officer Parker, who ran completely out of his overcoat. Finally the officer overhauled George half a mile beyond the Macon & Western depot, and George slept last night a guest of the city.

There were ten other arrests for straight out drunks.

Fulton Superior Court.

Hon. John L. Hopkins, Judge.

CRIMINAL SESSION.

Court met at its usual hour.

State vs. Sanford Banks, alias Johnson. Larceny from the house. The defendant waived arraignment, and plead guilty. He was sentenced to hard labor in the chain gang for three months.

State vs. Green Brown, colored. Rape. The charge against this negro was that he had outraged the person of a little white girl only nine years of age, named Mary Eliza Moreland, and who lives about five miles from the city. The evidence disclosed the fact that no outrage had been accomplished, and showed many mitigating circumstances. The jury found the defendant guilty of assault with intent to rape.

The court sentenced the prisoner to hard labor in the penitentiary for one year.

State vs. Cæsar Waters. Burglary in the night time Charged with breaking into the house of Rev. J. F. Edens, and stealing a silver watch. He was found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for five years. Hoke Smith and Wimpey for defense.

Shortly after the reception of the verdict, court adjourned until its regular hour this morning, when a case against a negro named Lindsay, for assault with intent to murder, will be tried.

A REMARKABLE HOG.—The Sandersville Herald says: "Mr. Robert T. Pounds, of Washington county killed a big hog last Tuesday, and as an item for those interested in fat hogs we give his weight. Gross 570 pounds, net 580 pounds." According to that showing it is better for a Washington county farmer to raise dead hogs than live ones. He could make a fortune by sending a few up here, provided they are guaranteed to turn out the same way after they are knocked in the head. However, we believe it, for there is no telling what a Washington county hog can't do.

CITY subscribers will please call at the office and secure their cards in the distribution before too late. The $1000 in gold or one of the pianos, should be won by Atlanta this time.

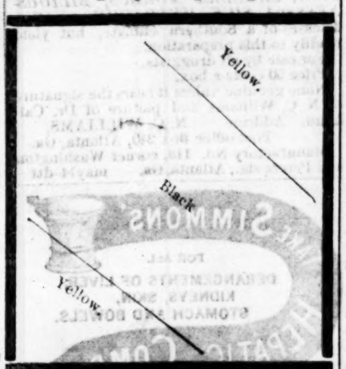
Special Telegram.

His jovial majesty, being now with his merry retinue in the Baltic sea, has seen fit to remind his followers of his coming, and to the end that uniforming may be maintained in reference to the royal standard, the following diagram is promulgated:



The width thereof being two-thirds the length.

His majesty takes occasion to again remind his faithful followers that the prospect brightens for a gorgeous entry on next 12th night. Extraordinary preparations are being made.

All merchants, hotel keepers and custodians of public institutions are commanded to prominently display the colors according to the design herein set forth. Any deviation will occasion the displeasure of his most jovial majesty.

By the king's command.
HIJIM, Chamberlain.

Fulton County Jail.

The reporter visited the above institution yesterday morning, not at the dictate of a judge, at the suggestion of a jury, but of his own free will. The report had gone out that there were some eighty odd persons confined within its walls, and the reporter could not believe that so large a number of criminals belonged to Fulton county proper. Upon entering the office of the jail, Capt. G. Whit Anderson and Mr. John S. Wise were found at their post, and with the courtesy characteristic of these gentlemen, they proferred their services to make a few moments duration within the prison and its enclosure as cheerful as possible.

The reporter went through the garden attached to the jail, and saw sufficient testimony that its yield of vegetables during the season had been good. Captain Wise has a weakness for grapes, and he is cultivating several varieties, among them a wild grape, which came from the Blue Ridge. In walking through the garden, Captain W. called up one of his pets, which is a game cock, being a cross of the Irish gray and a Derby. This cock is only five months old, yet weighs five pounds. It is named Milt Candler, and bears himself very proudly.

After leaving the garden the reporter was conducted into the back yard of the jail. Here he found two very fierce and dangerous looking bull dogs, both females, one of them a black and the other white, and just such looking animals as the reporter would not like to "meet by moonlight alone." In one corner of the yard could be seen the gallows, the one on which O'Neal suffered the penalty for his crime. The interior of the jail prsesented a very cleanly and neat appearance, the rooms and cells all in good order, as were the arrangements for heating the entire building, as well as for cooking. Upon an examination of the books in the office the reporter ascertained that there were 83 prisoners in the jail. Of this number 35 are United States prisoners and 48 are Fulton county prisoners. Of this latter number about 41 are colored people. There are four female prisoners, two of them are colored, two white. One of the white females is a United States prisoner, her offense, evading the revenue. The other white female is Miss Lizzie Clifton, whose offense is known to the readers of our superior court reports.

Everything seemed comfortable about the jail. If anything is wanting, perhaps there is not a sufficiency of water. It was gratifying to see that while Captain Anderson and Mr. Wise were decided with the prisoners, they spoke kindly to them and seemed to have their esteem. One of the prisoners seeing a reporter in the jail remarked that he hoped the names of the inmates would not be published. And why the necessity of publishing their names, as they have respectable mothers, sisters and friends, who are mortified to see their relatives names? It also has a hardening influence on the subject, as to steel his feelings against society in general. It is of no moral advantage, but rather to the contrary. There is a species of moral cowardice in helping to degrade the needy, helpless and already degraded. All attempts should be to elevate rather than degrade such. It is easy for us, who have the privileges and comforts of life, to descend upon the vices of the ignorant, and condemn their policy; but when you know their origin, education, &c., you may wonder that they are not worse than they are. The inmates of the jail will some day be free, and we should have some system of charity to restore them to an honorable place in society.

The Governor's Guards.

The guards gave a most delightful hop at their armory over Lowrey's store last evening. Their splendid hall never greeted a lovelier set of ladies or more attentive cavaliers. The members of the company were in full uniform. The toilettes of most of the ladies were very simple, but beautiful in their simplicity. A splendid band furnished the music, and pretty feet tripped away to the soft measures of the waltz, and through the stately cotillion until long after midnight. A more enjoyable hop was never given in our city, and the guards as beax can't be beat, at least all the ladies say this and they ought to know. Let them give another such entertainment, and there won't be half a dozen single men left in the company.

READY-MADE CARPETS.—Several handsome made up carpets, misfits, which can be had at New York cost. Several hundred yards of remnants of carpeting of all grades, less than cost.

THE HOLMAN TROUBLE.

Facts About the Attachment, Etc.

We saw Mr. Marshal deGraffenried yesterday and gathered from him the full facts pertaining to his descent upon the Holman Opera Troupe Thursday night.

To understand then the whole matter, it must be known that Mr. W. T. Powell, the lessee of the Richmond is playing a number of troups through the south. Both the Lingards and the Holman opera companany ore among these troups. With each one of his troupes Mr. Powell has entered into a contract. He agrees to pay all travelling expenses, hall expenses and bills, advertising, etc., and in return is to receive one-half of the earnings. The Lingards, who recently broke up in Macon, claim that Mr. Powell has violated his contract with them, and that their failure is due to this cause. They accordingly made out a little bill against him for breach of contract, amounting to about $1,000, and placed it in Mr. DeGraffenried's hands for collection. When the Holman troupe arrived here, Mr. deGraffenried, believing that they were under the Powell management, determined to tie up his share of the earnings. He accordingly waited until the last night and served a process of garnishment upon the ticket agent and Mr. Holman. They answered that Powell sued them, and as another resort, Mr. deGraffenried took out an attachment and had it levied upon the company's baggage, hoping to find some of Powell's property among it, which he could hold to satisfy his claim. The company replevied their baggage, giving bond with Mr. DeGives as security, and went on their way yesterday morning. This is the whole story.

Mr. DeGraffenried emphatically denies that, as was asserted by a city paper, he garnisheed their baggage. This is a remedy entirely unknown to the law, and would have conferred immortality upon Mr. DeGraffenried if he could have succeeded in doing it.

Street and Sidewalk Topics.

—Embroidered shoes for ladies are coming into fashion, what about skirts then?

—The Superior court will probably adjourn between the middle and last of January.

—The work being done on Loyd street below Jones' stables, is a very decided improvement.

—Mr. Henry E. Wheeler, business agent of the Brown Dramatic Company, reached the city last night.

—Mr. George W. Martin and Mr. John Archer, both of this city, left for New Orleans last night, and will make it their future home.

—The national convention of short-horn breeders will be held December 2d at Springfield, Illinois. We have not heard of any one going on from this city.

—The reporter is informed that several of our citizens have sent money to the Tuscumbia sufferers. Well if "there were no crown beyond Jordan" these kind of things will do the soul good here.

—A very exciting game of billiards came off at the National Hotel between Mr. Johnson, of John Robinson's circus, and Mr. R. T. Bonnell, of this city, which resulted in victory to the last named gentleman.

—Four sleeping cars were attached to the Western & Atlantic train which came in last night. On board were one hundred and twenty-five Knights Templar, bound for New Orleans.

—Col. Price left Atlanta last night for Richmond, having been appointed a delegate to the cheap transportation convention which meets in that city on the 1st of December.

—Quite a number of Nimrods, from the city were on the war path yesterday. What luck tracking the musical turkey, and watching for the aquatic duck, the reporter did not ascertain.

—A large number of ladies have examined THE CONSTITUTION piano at Turner, Braumuller and Barth's, on Whitehall street, and the universal expression is, that for power, volume, and sweetness of tone, for capacity, for expression and variety of effect, for beauty of style and finish, it is an excellent instrument.

—At a meeting of the board of trade yesterday, the following gentlemen were appointed delegates to the Richmond cheap transportation convention, which meets December 1st: J. N. Dunn, W. J. Garrett, R. F. Mattox, J. J. Toon and J. W. Fears. Power was given these gentlemen to appoint their alternates.

—The reporter was on time at the depot last night, anticipating the pleasure of seeing a bride. He was not gratified, as the happy couple were not on the State Road train. The couple were Mr. George H. Gilreath, of the firm, of McDaniel & Gilreath of this city, and his lady, recently Miss Rena Mumford, of Bartow county.

—"I saved that when I was paid," etc., was the remark of a Whitehall street merchant yesterday, who started life on a very small salary, and is now a rich man. To gain a competency, or to become rich, saving is as indispensable as the food we eat; and to invest so the same shall increase, is as important as nutrition. The way to permanent wealth is to make every dollar a servant to work for you and gain more.

—The reporter has heard men on the streets say that we should have cotton factories here, men who are able to subscribe, yet only talk, and frequently close their street speeches by saying "we must invite men of capital to come here." The truth is capitalists are men of shrewd judgment, and are not likely to locate where citizens will not do their part Talk, tinkling brags and sounding cymbals will not allure them. We must set forth reasons that show intrinsic merit and an ability that we can help ourselves, if needs be.

—The reporter walked out Pryor street yesterday afternoon, and at one of the residences on that street witnessed a lady busily engaged in setting out shrubbery; and in returning to the businesspart of the city in the corner of Jones and Formwalt streets, he found another lady deeply engaged with both hands filled with cuttings, shrubs, &c. Flowers are emblematic of woman's purity and innocence, what is there more proper than that she should cultivate them? Flowers beguile many of the vacant moments of woman's life of their pains. Many a female has been pleased and made cheerful by their beauty and fragrance; while their matchless hues and inimitable structure have led their thoughts to the wonderful display of infinite perfection.

—The reporter is gratified to state that the board of trade of this city is not only a fixed fact, but intends making efforts to increase its usefulness. It is doubtful if the members of this organization are really aware of the benefits they have conferred upon the city, and of the influence their action has had upon not only business, but business men. Mercantile character and standing has been elevated in the community, good feeling has been engendered among members of the trade, business has been improved, in fact, various benefits have sprung up since the organization of the board, benefits that all must feel and acknowledge. In several instances the board has aided to accomplish the cheapening and facilitating transportation; it has established important rules for the government of our business men in their dealings with one another in furnishing the medium through which the united moral efforts of the energetic and practical merchant have been brought to bear upon the public mind, thus forming public opinion and in promoting generally the interest of commerce. But it is unnecessary to commend this organization—the only matter of astonishment is, that a greater number of our merchants do not avail themselves of the opportunity to have their names enrolled as members.

HEAVY LOSS TO A GOOD CITIZEN.—We were pained to see from the Sandersville Herald of the 27th, that the gin house of Judge Green Brantly, of Washington county, was destroyed by fire last Tuesday night. With his building Judge Brantly loses his gin, machinery and twenty bales of cotton. The loss is heavy and falls upon one of the most generous and whole-souled men in Washington county. We extend to him our hearty sympathies.

HUNDREDS of ladies and gentlemen are visiting our beautiful pianos, the Chickering Square Grand costing one thousand dollars, and another costing six hundred dollars. These pianos, to be given to our subscribers on or before the 31st of December, are at Guilford, Wood & Co.'s, and Turner, Braumuller & Barth's "Old Southern Music House." Go and see them.

Trustee Sale.

BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER ISSUED by John L. Hopkins, Judge of the Superior Court, Atlanta Circuit, and exercising jurisdiction in chancery, I will sell before the court house door, in the city of Atlanta, on the FIRST TUESDAY IN DECEMBER next, within the legal hours of sale, all that tract or parcel of land commencing twenty feet from the west side of Mark W. Johnson's store house on Alabama street, and extending westwardly along said street sixty-four feet, and runningback one hundred and sixty feet, with an alley on the west side. On said lot there are two 2-room tenement buildings.

Sold for the benefit of the children of N. E. Gardner.

Terms—Half cash; balance 3 and 6 mont with ten per cent. per annum notes.

LOCAL AND BUSINESS NOTICES

IF ALCOHOLIC STIMULANTS are taken into the blood the heart works faster, and this unnatural speed wears out the vital machinery. All intoxicating nostrums advertised as "tonics," "renovators," &c., produce this disastrous effect, and should be rejected. DR. WALKER'S VEGETABLE VINEGAR BITTERS—an Invigorant without the curse of alcohol—is everywhere supplanting alcoholic poisons. nov12—d&w4w

GRAND DISPLAY OF
BRIDAL PRESENTS,
FINE JEWELRY, STERLING SILVERWARE, &C.

Ladies and Gentlemen,
Look to your Interest.

I have just completed my assortment of elegant Bridal Presents, consisting of a full line of the latest and most fashionable designs of solid sterling silverware, from the celebrated house of Messrs. Gorham & Co. Articles in sterling silver, in handsome cases, as low as five dollars, and up to the handsome tea set at eight hundred dollars. Also, the largest and most fashionable assortment of fine Watches, Jewelry, Gold Chains, Chain and Band Bracelets, and a variety of other beautiful goods suitable for presents.

Remember my first act, after buying out my present store, was to squash the combination then existing between the leading jewelry stores to keep up prices. I offer all of the elegant stock just purchased, at a small but fair profit, and give as my reasons r being able to sell goods so much lower than other jewelers in this city, the following:

First—My superior knowledge of the jewelry business.
Second—My large and extensive dealing with first-class houses.
Third—The large amount of goods sold by my house.
Fourth—The superior quality of goods I sell.
Fifth—I prefer the nimble sixpence to the slow shilling.
Sixth—You can find the greatest variety, the most fashionable designs, and the lowest prices in this State, at

EXECUTOR'S SALE.

CHATTAHOOCHEE
RIVER LAND
FOR SALE.

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE LAST will and testament of Mrs. Cynthia Green, late of Fulton county, Georgia, deceased, will be sold on the premises, eight miles west of Atlanta, on the 2d day of December next, six hundred and eighty-three acres of land, in divisions as follows.

FIRST DIVISION—Eighteen acres of fraction No. 24, and ninety and one-half acres, lot No. 53, making one hundred and eight and one-half acres, on which is situated the late residence of Mrs. Green. Said tract also embraces the south bank of the river and one-half interest in the Ferry known as Green & Howell's Ferry, which takes in annually from sixteen to eighteen hundred dollars toll.

SECOND DIVISION—Lot No. 52, containing 202½ acres, with tenement houses, gin house, and other improvements thereon.

THIRD DIVISION—Lot No. 51, containing 202½ acres upland, well timbered.

FOURTH DIVISION—Fraction No. 55, containing one hundred and seventy acres.

All of said lands situated in the 14th district of originally Fayette, now Fulton county. A large portion of said lands are first-class river and creek bottoms, and are in one of the best neighborhoods in Georgia, well watered and perfectly healthy.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash; one-third payable in six, and one-third in twelve months, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum on last two payments.

Mr. C. C. Green, Mr. H. H. Glenn or Tillman Knight, on the premises, will show the lands to those wisting to examine.

S. B. LOVE, Executor.

DR. TUTT'S MEDICINES.

DR. TUTTS
VEGETABLE
LIVER PILLS.

A mild aperient and gentle purgative, recommended for the cure of all derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. By their timely use much sickness is prevented. The test of many years have proven them to be the safest, surest and best of all the pills ever offered to the public. They purify the blood, remove all corruptions and restore the diseased system to perfect health. As an Antidote to Chills and Fever they have no equal. For Dyspepsia they are a Specific. For Sick Headache and Bilious Colic they are sure cure. For Constipation, Rheumatism, Piles, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, Nervousness, a positive cure. For Female Irregularities, without a rival. When one does not "feel very well," a single dose stimulates the stomach and bowels, restores the appetite, and imparts vigor to the system. Sold everywhere. Office, 18 Murray street, New York.

DR. TUTT'S HAIR DYE,
is easily applied, imparts a beautiful black or brown, and acts like magic. The best in the world. Sold by all druggists. Price, $1 00 per box.

DR. TUTTS
EXPECTORANT

The ghastly record of deaths that result from pulmonary affections is frightful. There is no disease that is so insiduous in its attack as consumption. By the neglect of "slight colds" they soon become deep seated and defy remedies which, if applied at the outset, would have averted all danger. Dr. Tutt's Expectorant has proven itself the most valuable Lung Balsam ever discovered. A distinguished clergyman of New York, pronounces it the "greatest blessing of the nineteenth century," and says "no family should be without it." It is pleasant to the taste, and a single dose will often remove the most obstinate cough. Office, 18 Murray street, New York.

HAVE YOU TRIED
JURUBEBA
ARE YOU
Weak, Nervous or Debilitated ?

Are you so Languid that any exertion requires more of an effort than you feel capable of making?

Then try JURUBEBA, the wonderful tonic and invigorator, which acts so beneficially on the secretive organs as to impart vigor to atl the vital forces.

It is no alcoholic appetizer, which stimulates for a short lime, only to let the sufferer fall to a lower depth of misery, but it is a vegetable tonic acting directly on the liver and spleen.

It regulates the Bowels, quiets the nerves, and gives such a healthy tone to the whole system as to soon make the invalid feel like a new person.

Its operation is not violent, but is characterized by great gentleness; the patient experiences no sudden change, no marked results, but gradually his troubles

"Fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And silently steal away."

This is new and untried discovery, but has been used with wonderful remedial results, and is pronounced by the highest medical authorities "the most powerful tonic and alterative known."

Ask your druggists for it.

The Montpelier Female Humane Association, chartered by the Legislature of Virginia and the Circuit Court of Orange county, proposes by a Grand Gift Concert to establish and endow a "Home for the Old, Infirm, and Destitute Ladies of Virginia," at Montpelier, the former residence of President James Madison.

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, RICHMOND, July 3, 1874.—It affords me pleasure to say that I am well acquainted with a large majority of the officers of the Montpelier Female Humane Association, who reside in the vicinity of my home, and I attest their intelligence and their worth and high reputation as gentlemen, as well as the public confidence, influence and substantial means liberally represented among them.

JAMES L. KEMPER, Gov. Virginia.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., July 8, 1874.— * * I commend them as gents of honor and integrity, and fully entitled to the confidence of the people. * * *

R. W. HUGHES, U. S. Judge,
Eastern District of Virginia.

Further references by permission; His Excellency Gilbert C. Walker ex-Governor of Va.; Hon. Robt. E. Withers, Lieut-Gov. o Va. and U. S. Senator elect; Senators and Members of Congress from Virginia.

Remittances for tickets may be made by express prepaid, post-office money order on Washington, D. C., or by registered letter.

For full particulars, testimonials, &c., send for Circular. Adbress

LAND AGENCY.

TEXAS
LAND AGENCY!

HAVING spent part of the last three years in Texas, and having been repeatedly solicited by parties owning and controling large tracts of land in that State, I have determined, after thoroughly, investigaing the whole subject matter, to open a LAND AGENCY to some eligible point in the

LONE STAR STATE

at an early date. With seven years' experience in the REAL ESTATE BUSINESS in all of its details in Georgia, the business will not be new. Parties owning or controling lands in Texas can for the present address me at Rome, Ga. My partner and myself propose to give our attention exclusively to the business in all its details. Bring and conduct suits of ejectment, re-establish titles, sell and convey lands and pay taxes. Best of references given. Correspondence earnestly solicited. Address JOHN T. BURNS & CO. Rome, Ga.

MEDICAL.

SOUTHERN BRANCH
—OF THE—
NATIONAL SURGICAL INSTITUTE

Wall street, opp. Passenger Depot, N. Side.
ATLANTA..................GEORGIA

THIS is an Incorporated Institution, with ample capital, and a thoroughly organized Surgical and Medical Staff, for the treatment of Congenital and Acquired Deformities of the human body, and diseases or conditions requiring surgical operations, or mechanical appliances for their relief or cure; also, for the treatment of diseases peculiar to females, for paralysis and other afflictions, as shown in Illustrated Circulars. The Southern Branch is now in successful operation in Atlanta.

The building occupied is of brick, new, large, well ventilated, well furnished, and supplied with machinery power, gymnastic arrangements, Electrical Instruments, vapor, electric galvanic and other Baths, vaccuum treatment, movement apparatus, and many other appliances from the original Institute in Indianapolis, Ind. An ample corps of skilled assistants, and apparatus makers, has been brought here, and the whole is under the charge of Surgeons of well known ability and skill. Three hundred patients are already under the treatment of the Southern Branch, and the results are highly gratifying and satisfactory. Call and examine the methods of treatment, and the facilities for carrying forward the work. Address:

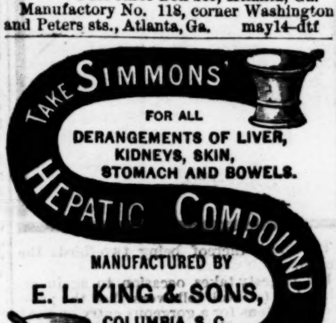
DR. CALHOUN'S LIVER PILLS.

I AM engaged in the manufacture of the Celebrated Family Medicine, known as the Calhoun Liver and Anti-Bilious Pills, under the supervision and assistance of Dr. Calhoun himself. This Pill has been in use for the last 35 years, and has taken precedence over all other Family preparations by all that have used them. Thousands would certify to their great value if necessary. One fact should supercede any amount of certificates, and that fact is this: Dr. Calhoun has been physician to the Fulton County Prison for over seven years, when the number of prisoners ranged from 20 to 70, laboring under all the diseases incidental to this climate. With but few exceptions they have all been treated with this Pill, and astonishing to say during that long period not a solitary death occurred under his treatment. This fact is worth any amount of testimonials.

I am now prepared to fill orders from druggists, merchants and others. All orders sent me shall receive prompt attention. There is no type of FEVER, DYSPEPSIA, DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, RHEUMATISM, CHOLERA MORBUS, BILIOUSNESS and SICK HEADACHE, or other diseases of a Southern climate, but yield readily to this preparation.

For sale by all druggists.
Price 50 cents a box.

None genuine unless it bears the signature of N. C. Williams and picture of Dr. Calhoun. Address N. C. WILLIAMS,
Post-office Box 240, Atlanta, Ga.
Manufactory No. 118, corner Washington and Peters sts., Atlanta, Ga. may14—dtf



DR. SIMMONS affirms that this is the very best Liver Medicine to which his name has ever been connected; and we know from the many testimonials that we receive, there is no medicine equal to it for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Chills and Fever, Bilious Croup or Wind Colic, Bilious, Sick or Nervous Headache. and for all other diseases arising from a disordered state of the Liver. For sale by Geo. J. Howard, J. A. Taylor, Thomas Pullum & Co., C. S. Newton and Theo. Schumann, Druggists, Atlanta, Ga.
